

↑ 12.8k ↓

💬 1.9k

🔗 Share

🚀 BEST COMMENTS ▼

probablyJamesCaan • 1h

“The researchers surveyed 196 high school students and 328 of their parents/caretakers.....

‘The major caveat is that the study was conducted with students at one high school just outside of New York City and their parents.’

The ridiculous headline and comments here are really overselling this. The findings might end up being correct, but I think it took longer to write the article than it took to do the study.

↩ Reply

↑ 1.3k ↓

sammie287 • 30m

A single group of high schoolers right outside of massive city in a more liberal state? While I feel like the study's results are probably true, this is an insane sample bias.

Vote

CrossP • 7m

Insane to the point that this feels like a study conducted by an undergrad with no funding for a class they took as an elective.

Vote

solsangraal • 3m